Community town hall meeting Monday to focus on youth solutions to violence

A Milwaukee town hall meeting set for Monday will focus on the city's young people -- the population most often affected by deadly violence in the city.

President of the City of Milwaukee Youth Council Kalan R. Haywood II, Rufus King High School, and several community partners organized the town hall to discuss solutions for the violence in Milwaukee. Last year the homicide rate in the city of Milwaukee was the second highest in 20 years.

Youth Council President Haywood said: "Please join members of the City of Milwaukee Youth Council, the Rufus King High School community, Urban Underground, state Rep. David Bowen, as well as other city leaders and elected officials for this important event."

What: Town Hall meeting on youth violence

When: 5 p.m. on Monday, February 29
